INTERNET EXPLORER 9

Not an upgrade...but a completely new design.

It is fast...because of hardware and software accelerators.

- In the past, less than 10% the CPU of your computer was used to drive (render) webpages.
- Now up to 90% of the CPU is used to drive webpages.

- In the past, none of the $G_{\text{(raphics)}}$ $P_{\text{(rocessing)}}$ $U_{\text{(nit)}}$ was used to drive (render) webpages.
- Now, the GPU is dramatically speeding up the webpages.
- Now, vendors are writing software to use the GPU when using IE9.

These three reasons account for the high speed of IE9.

- CPU
- GPU
- Designing websites to take advantage.

Preliminary results:

IE9 tech preview performs 7.8x better than IE8

OK...it is faster

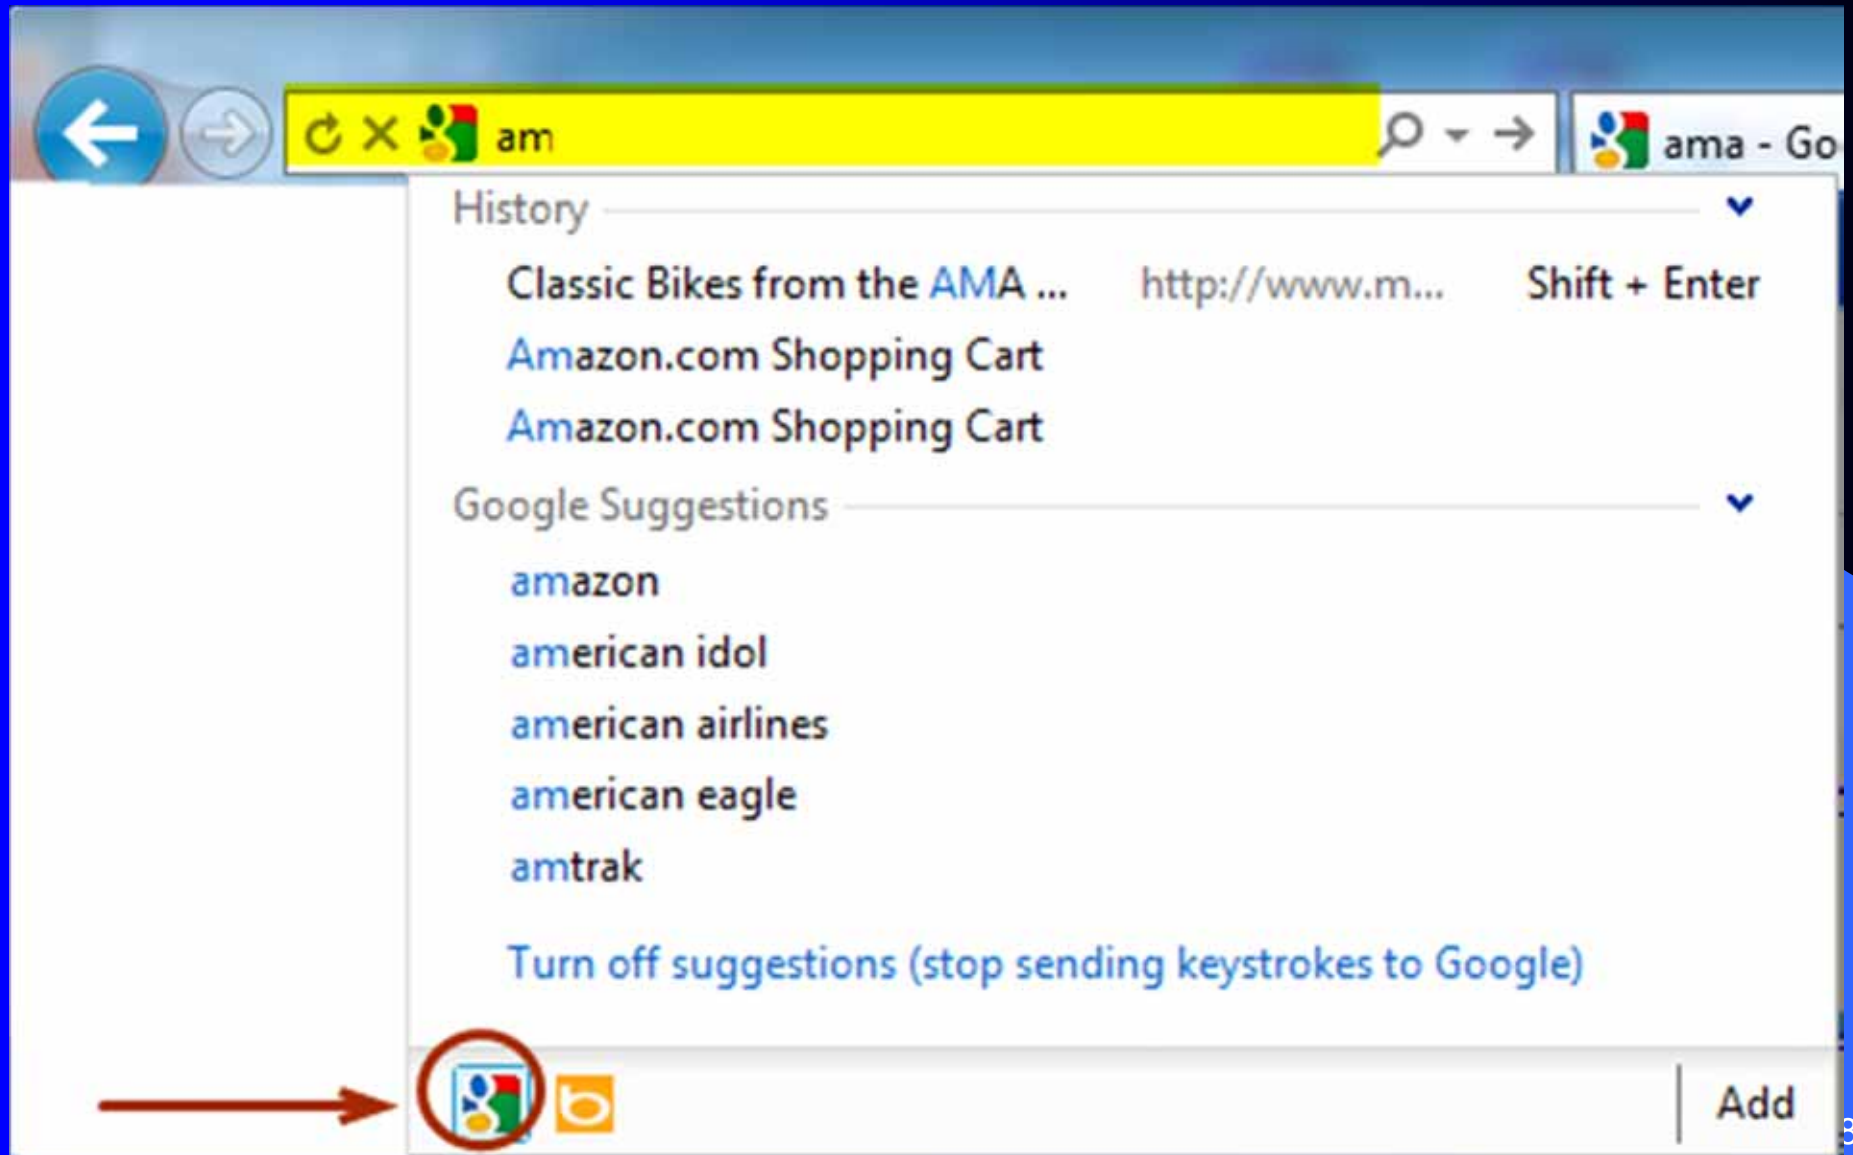

...what else is new?

- Search bar and address bar are the same.
- Smaller banner strip for maximum viewing of websites.
- Size, use and location of tabs
- New - Keyboard Shortcuts

A new look (cont.)

- ‘Tearing’ off tabs.
- Pinning to the Task Bar.
- Jump lists on the IE9 icon.
- Download Manager.
- Security and PopUps

New term: “One Box”

The image shows a web browser's address bar with the text 'ama' entered. A dropdown menu is open, displaying search suggestions. The suggestions are categorized into 'History' and 'Bing Suggestions'. The 'History' section includes 'Classic Bikes from the AMA ...', 'Amazon.com Shopping Cart', and another 'Amazon.com Shopping Cart'. The 'Bing Suggestions' section includes 'amazon', 'american airlines', 'american express', 'amtrak', and 'american eagle'. At the bottom of the dropdown, there is a link to 'Turn off suggestions (stop sending keystrokes to Bing)'. A red circle highlights the Bing logo icon in the bottom left corner of the dropdown, with a red arrow pointing to it from the right. The address bar also shows navigation buttons (back, forward, refresh, close) and a search icon. The text 'ama - Go' is visible in the top right corner of the browser window.

The image shows the main content area of the Smithsonian website. At the top, the Smithsonian logo is visible. Below it is a navigation menu with links for Home, Museum & Zoo, Research Center, Exhibitions, Events, Cultural Programs, Collections, and Storefront. The central focus is a large banner for 'CIVIL WAR 150' with the subtitle 'Beyond the Battlefields'. Below the banner are four smaller image-based links: 'Plan Your Visit', 'Explore Our Exhibitions', 'Search Our Collections', and 'Browse Our Encyclopedias'. At the bottom of this section are four columns of text: 'Visiting the Museum & Zoo', 'Featured Events', 'Popular Smithsonian Blogs', and 'Smithsonian Magazine'.

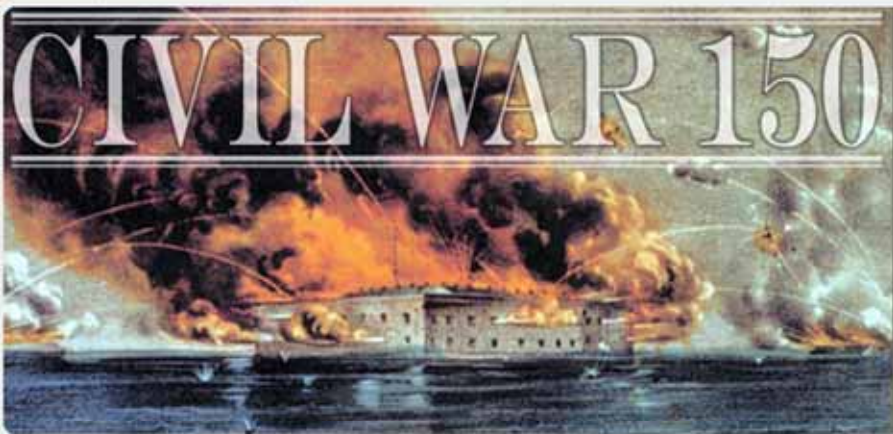

This image is a smaller, lower-resolution version of the Smithsonian website content shown in the first image. It contains the same elements: the Smithsonian logo, navigation menu, 'CIVIL WAR 150' banner, four image-based links, and four columns of text at the bottom.

To get an even larger screen...

When the website opens, press f11 and the website will go full screen.

Pressing f11 once again will return the website to the normal viewing.
